This paper focuses on neural network architectures.

A neural network can be used for classification tasks.

We also apply neural network methods to image recognition.

deep learning improves neural network performance significantly.

Python is the language of choice for implementation.

The database stores results from the cloud server.

Cloud server infrastructure supports the deployment pipeline.

Network latency affects the overall database response time.